CLINTON SAVINGS BANK SUPPORTS COPS FOR KIDS WITH CANCER

(CLINTON, Mass., October 16, 2018) – Clinton Savings Bank recently donated two thousand dollars to the Clinton Police Department to benefit Cops for Kids with Cancer. This contribution was made possible by a one thousand dollar match presented by the Federal Home Bank of Boston. In addition to the crushing emotional toll taken, there is a domino effect in having a child diagnosed with cancer. Families, once solvent, now find themselves on the financial brink, as most often one parent must leave a job to travel to obtain care for a child. Additional costs such as gas, parking fees, meals and even treatments that may not be fully covered by insurance can add up quickly. These funds are meant to help alleviate some of the financial worries the family might be going through—or provide them with the opportunity to make things better for their child. The Cops for Kids with Cancer nonprofit organization helps a minimum of six families a month.

“It was my honor to present over $13,000 for local families on behalf of the Clinton Police Department. Year to date, we have raised the largest number of funds in our history of volunteering for Cops for Kids with Cancer. Thanks to the support of local relationships like ours with Clinton Savings Bank, their partnership with the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston, and our community, this was made possible” said Jeff Frisch, Detective for Clinton Police Department, volunteer for Cops for Kids with Cancer.

About Cops for Kids with Cancer

Cops for Kids with Cancer is a charitable organization made up of current and retired police officers along with other caring individuals that donates approximately $30,000 per month to families with children battling cancer. The donations are meant to help those families cover the various expenses that may occur. All of the members of the organization are volunteers and are not paid for their work.
